MUSEUMS AND COLLECTIONS
PROJECTS PROGRAM
THE UNIVERSITY OF MELBOURNE
The Museum and Collections Projects Program (MCPP) offers students, alumni and interested individuals the unique opportunity to work behind the scenes on a diverse range of collection management projects with the University’s outstanding cultural collections.
Working in consultation with collection managers, archivists, librarians and curators, the projects offer participants direct engagement with museum, art, archive, library and science collections and present the opportunity to acquire new skills, advance professional development or simply explore an interest. The projects also have real value to the collections and contribute to their long-term management, helping to ensure they remain an accessible, relevant and dynamic resource.
Project areas:
- Cataloguing
- Research
- Significance assessment
- Preventative conservation
- Interpretation and exhibition development
The MCPP provides the exceptional opportunity for you to develop vocational skills, make new contacts and gain insight into the University’s rich cultural heritage.
For further information and to get involved, visit the Program website

http://museumsandcollections.unimelb.edu.au/projects

Helen Arnoldi
Museums and Collections
Projects Coordinator
The University of Melbourne
T +61 3 8344 3103
E harnoldi@unimelb.edu.au